DO I LEARN TO SKI OR SNOWBOARD?

This is one of the most commonly asked questions, both are different sports so just because you can do one doesn't mean you can do the other. The first and most important question to ask yourself is not which is easiest, but which will I enjoy doing the most. If you enjoy what you're doing you are going to learn more quickly anyway.

Snowboarding can be a little daunting at first, and you may have to have patience for the first few lessons. Once you are up and running though your learning curve increases very rapidly, with only two edges to control your coordination will be quick to master. Snowboarding is also suited very well to the UK; with no real mountains we concentrate more on the freestyle and creative side of snowsports to which Halifax is perfectly suited.

Skiing in comparison is a little more forgiving on those first few lessons with a good stable platform of two skis to get your balance. However you will not progress quite as quickly as the snowboarders as you have four edges to coordinate. Skiing is going through a revival at the moment, the freestyle aspect of the sport is booming. Halifax is right at the front of that movement with several of our instructors currently being British Big Air Champions.

SNOWBOARD LESSONS

As the UK's premier snowboard centre we pride ourselves on helping you learn to the highest possible standard. You will be taught on the best snowboard slope in the country, by some of the best riders in the country. Whether you only aspire to riding gracefully down the slope, or want to be the best it is possible at Halifax.

Private Lessons

We limit our snowboarding to private lessons. This ensures that this high standard is upheld. Our instructors will tailor the lesson plan around your needs so that you can learn at a speed that's right for you. If you can get some friends to learn with, the price per person will come right down.
